Rackspace, the world's leader in the hosting and cloud computing industry has announced that it has been voted as the overall 30th best place to work in the UK and once again the highest ranking IT Services company, in the prestigious Sunday Times 100 Best Companies Awards. Commended for its continued focus on employee engagement, Rackspace has ranked as one of the top ten companies for people, who love what they do, believe in the company and its future and deliver a great service.

Rackspace Hosting UK has, for the third year running, been featured in the top tier of the Sunday Times Best Employer Awards. The Awards, which are based on employee interviews, indicate that Rackspace has created a fun and caring environment that helps nurture and grow individual talent.

The Sunday Times noted that 89 percent of Rackspace employees who responded to the survey were excited about where the company is going, with 79 percent saying their work is great for their personal growth and 95 per cent stating that they are proud to work for the organisation.

Brian Thomson, EMEA Managing Director at Rackspace, commented: "We are very proud of all the progress we have made in our business over the last year and what is truly pleasing is that as the company has grown our 'Rackers' continue to feel valued in their roles.

"We are thrilled to see that our employees love what they do and are excited at where the business is going. Our continued success is without doubt because of our Racker's tireless dedication to Fanatical Support and the passion they show every single day."

Rackspace is one of the UK's most successful and fastest growing providers of IT hosting services. It has consistently been recognised for its excellence as an IT employer, with a number of accolades, most recently being one of only 14 companies to receive a Laureate award from the Financial Times for being one of the best places to work in the UK and Europe 2009.
